Rerun_3_MoreThanProfiles

This can be done with more than just profile pictures though. The next place people look is to cover photos. And you use the same process on there. Just get a series of cover photos that you like to use and use those over and over again.

This is one I'll probably use around very Christmas for quite a while. We're having our Christmas picture taken here so it's a funny one. We'll use this often.

And it's more than just profiles and even more than just covers. A popular post from the past gets new life from commenting on it again. So if you go back and you had a post that was one of your more popular ones, that people really seemed to relate to, go back, comment on it again and that will get a push back up in front of people.

And it's already been proven once that people liked it before because you had a lot of comments on it and so it's another one to just get it in front of everybody again.

And that's it for the Profile Rerun. It's not a complicated process. It's easy, but it really works. The people I've shared this with have been amazed how well this works for them. So just go ahead and give this a try and start planning out your profile pictures.
